Manager Leath has arranged for special ed, though some of the players have been attractiveness. Three prominent stars and two first-class combinations will go to make up the sum of this week's entertainment at the Richmond play-houses. Mr. Thomas Keene, the eminent tragedian, will appear at the Theatre to-morand Atlanta-Inauguration of "The greatest and most popular of his impersonations, and he will be supported by a splendid company of twenty-three players, with new and brilliant costumes, scenery, and a rare perfection of stage details. No actor in our time has done more to uphold the supremacy of Shakes-peare and other classic dramatists than Mr. Keene. Since his advent as a star he has persistently played the creations of these masters, and nothing else. The best of anything always pays, and pur-

"Government Acceptance." The scene of the play is laid in Washington, and its plot is founded on the incident that the government offers to purchase the most practical model of an electrical mannof-war. Robert Gordon has spent months of toil in perfecting his model, as he is an electrical inventor. His plans are copied by a friend, and a vital portion of the electrical machinery, which can only the electrical machinery, which can only be replaced by months of labor, is stolen by this false friend. When trial-day premises spromes the thief exhibits his plan and and mamma declares that Gordon stole the ideas from him, and receives the acceptance of the
